

This year my web site helped celebrate two of my heroes with the 100th anniversary of the birth of gay code-breaker Alan Turing, and unveiling a blue plaque where jingle master Kenny Everett lived.

In the summer Hammy took me to see Usain Bolt, and I began a YouTube series of Steve's Kitchen with my 'Instant Key Lime Pie'.

Last month I helped Andrew move to his brand new flat in Brixton, which is fab and has it's own big patio. Back at mum's in Portsmouth I installed my coffee shrine and helped make the house I was born in more accessible.

We celebrated niece Natasha's 18th with a Mad Hatter's Teaparty (yes I was Tweedle Dee), and with brothers Peter and Richard took our towels to see the excellent staged radio version of the Hitch Hikers Guide to the Galaxy.

All change in New York where Allan's Citiview Guest House will close when his block is redeveloped. I will miss the subway going past the window and the graffiti factory next door. And it may be the last Black Party too, as the Roseland Ballroom is being demolished ;-(

All set for the 2014 'recovery'?

Stephen
